Something That Will Surprise the World

The Essential Writings of the Founding Fathers

SUSAN DUNN

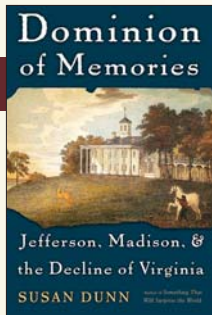

The most important speeches, letters, and writings of the Founding Fathers, brought together in a single edition

The Founding Fathers—Washington, Hamilton, Jefferson, Adams, Madison. Subjects of seemingly infinite biographies, they are rarely allowed to speak to us in their own words. But it was their words that mattered most to them. In this volume, eminent historian Susan Dunn brings together the Founders' most important letters, speeches, and essays and sets them in the context of their lives and times. The Founders were thinking revolutionaries—they read, questioned, debated, and, most of all, wrote. They theorized about government and political institutions; considered the problem of parties and factions; and reflected on religion and education. Through their words, they created the first democracy of the modern world; their courage, imagination, and genius would never be surpassed. Here they are, in the present tense of their extraordinary lives. To truly understand them, this is where we must begin.

Dominion of Memories

Jefferson, Madison, & the Decline of Virginia

For decades, the Commonwealth of Virginia led the nation—the premier state in population, size, and wealth, it produced a galaxy of leaders. Yet by the middle of the ninetieth century, Virginia had become a byword for slavery, provincialism, and poverty. Historian Susan Dunn here reveals the little known history of the decline of the Old Dominion. Basic Books, June 2007, 288 pages • 978-0-465-01743-0, $27.50, hardcover
