

"If Kapuscinski was the modern master of literary reportage, then Seierstad proves a worthy follower with this bleak but beautiful book."

The Angel of Grozny

Orphans of a Forgotten War

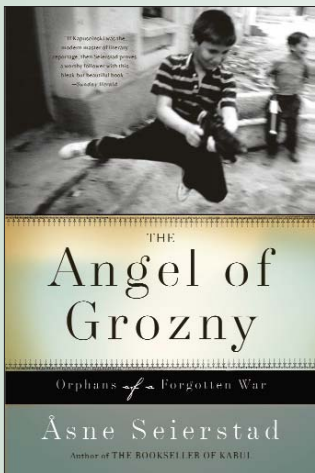

Åsne Seierstad

International best-selling journalist and author Åsne Seierstad shares her experience on a harrowing and dangerous journey into the rarely glimpsed, strife-torn region of Chechnya.

In the early hours of New Year's 1994, Russian troops invaded the Republic of Chechnya, plunging the country into a prolonged and bloody conflict that continues to this day. Åsne Seierstad, a foreign correspondent, traveled regularly to Chechnya to report on the war. In the following decade, Seierstad became an internationally renowned reporter and author, visiting the Balkans, Afghanistan, Iran, and many other war-torn regions, but she never lost sight of the conflict that had initially inspired her career. Seierstad watched as Russia ruthlessly suppressed an Islamic rebellion in two bloody wars and as Chechnya evolved into one of the flashpoints in a world now focused on the threat of international terrorism. In 2006, she returned to Chechnya, traveling in secret and living with the orphaned children of Grozny, the children who will shape the country's future. The Angel of Grozny is not only an intimate portrait of children who grow up surrounded by and accustomed to extreme violence, but also a compelling and vivid account of a land's war-torn history and its ongoing battle for freedom.
