

NEW EDITION FROM WESTVIEW PRESS!

Authors V. Spike Peterson and Anne Sisson Runyan connect the power of gender—and the inequalities between and among women and men that it (re)produces—with the world politics of global governance, security, political economy, and ecology. This innovative, completely new edition features:

ACCESSIBLE YET SOPHISTICATED COVERAGE suitable for both undergraduate and graduate courses in a range of (inter)disciplines.

FRESH ANALYSIS that engages major advances in feminist international relations and transnational feminist scholarship, and explores the contradictions between new global policymaking attention to gender and deepening global crises of representation, insecurity, and sustainability.

INTERSECTIONAL AND TRANSNATIONAL MATERIAL that reworks gendered divisions of power, violence, and labor in terms of intersecting gender, race, class, sexuality, and national divisions, and relates the power of gender as a meta-lens to the global processes of imperialism, neoliberalism, racialization, and sexualization, against which transnational feminist resistance is directed.
