Doing Gender Diversity

Readings in Theory and Real-World Practice

Edited by Rebecca F. Plante and Lis M. Maurer

This cutting-edge collection demonstrates the multiple ways in which the universe of gender is socially, culturally, and historically constructed. It focuses on both hegemonic and transgressive gender development, roles, identities, and practices. To avoid balkanization, readings examine the various ways in which culture intersects with individuals to produce the range of presentations of self we call “gender.”

Westview Press, August 2009, 576 pages
978-0-8133-4437-9, $50.00, pb
