Sandra Steingraber, today's Rachel Carson, looks at the toxic, ecologically fractured world children now inhabit

Nothing could be more important than the health of our children, and no one is better suited to examine the threats against it than Sandra Steingraber. In Raising Elijah, she speaks as the scientist mother of two young children, enjoying and celebrating their lives while searching for ways to protect them—and all children—from the toxic, climate-threatened world they inhabit.

Each chapter of this engaging and unique book focuses on one inevitable ingredient of childhood and explores the underlying social, political, and ecological forces behind it. Through these everyday moments, Steingraber demonstrates how closely the private, intimate world of parenting connects to the public world of policy-making and how the ongoing environmental crisis is, fundamentally, a crisis of family life.

ALSO BY SANDRA STEINGRABER:

The first edition of Living Downstream set a new standard for scientific writing. The updated science in this new edition strengthens the case for banning poisons now pervasive in our air, our food, and our bodies. Saving the planet becomes a matter of saving ourselves—and an issue of human rights.
