“A masterful comparative analysis . . . This book makes profound scholarly insights readily accessible to undergraduate students and will be useful in world history surveys as well as more advanced courses.”

—Hope Benne, Salem State College

Islamic Gunpowder Empires provides an illuminating history of Islamic civilization in the early modern world through a comparative examination of Islam’s three greatest empires: the Ottomans, Safavids, and Mughals.

Key features include:

Comparative Framework: Addresses concepts of sovereignty, expansion, military organization, economy, society, culture, administration, transformation, and decline for each empire.

Essential Background and Conclusions: Establishes the empires’ common legacies and practices, and draws distinct conclusions about their formations, declines, and influences.

Thoughtful, Engaging Delivery: Provides comprehensive, nuanced historical narratives and analyses that are accessible to undergraduates, and incorporates numerous images, maps, and figures for reader support.
