

NEW EDITION FROM WESTVIEW PRESS

“This book should be required reading in any course on school improvement or school leadership, and for anyone seeking to look beyond quick fixes towards more durable supports for student learning.”

—Carolyn Riehl, Ph.D., TEACHERS COLLEGE, COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY

November 2010, 656 pages,
ISBN: 978-0-8133-4447-8,
$50.00, paperback

The new, second edition of SCHOOL, FAMILY, AND COMMUNITY PARTNERSHIPS features:

New readings, updates, and expanded or streamlined activities throughout: Reviews research on the implementation and effects of partnerships over the past decade and includes expanded consideration of district leadership and its impact on school programs.

Definitive course utility: Designed for use in courses of teacher education, preparation of school administrators, and other courses that prepare professionals to understand and to work in schools and with families and students.

Clear theoretical discussion: Outlines the theory of overlapping spheres of influence of family and school organizations that support children as students.

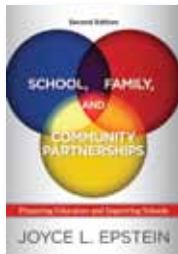

Applied learning tools: Includes Questions to Discuss, Field Experience assignments, and Comments to augment material in the readings.
