

Forthcoming New Edition!

“Traer provides not only an unusually coherent and laudable plan for canvassing the field of environmental ethics, but also takes a stance that . . . promises rich rewards for thinking critically about responsible earth citizenship.” —Environmental Values

The second edition of Doing Environmental Ethics:

Encourages applied ethics: Guides students to construct and test ethical presumptions.

Offers balanced coverage: Conceptualizes ethical positions from a variety of philosophical traditions, religious and secular as well as Eastern and Western.

FEATURES SIGNIFICANT UPDATES THROUGHOUT:

New sections on social justice and environmental justice as well as expanded coverage of ecofeminism.

New coverage of sustainable practices of corporations, NGOs' environmental actions, and rainforest certification programs.

New study questions in each chapter that emphasize analysis.

“Decisions,” short application exercises that allow students to evaluate current environmental issues, added to each chapter.

July 2012, 400 pages, 978-0-8133-4741-7, $37.00, pb
